WHY?

WHY do I have this drowsy, lifeless feeling? WHY do I have backache? WHY Neuritis and Rheumatism? WHY does Scrofulous taint and Erysipelas show itself? BECAUSE your blood is filled with Poison, which must be completely eradicated before you can regain health. You must go to the root of the matter. Put the Kidneys—the great and only blood purifying organs—in complete order, which is complete health, and with

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

and WARNER'S SAFE PILLS your Cure is Certain.

WHY do we know that? BECAUSE of tens of thousands of grateful women in all parts of the world have written us to this effect.

There is no stand-still in disease. You are either growing Better or Worse. Now is it with YOU?

WHY not to-day resort to that medicine which has veritably cured millions, and which will cure you if you will give it a chance?

All of Warner's preparations are Purely Vegetable. They are made on honor. They are time-tried. They are No New Discovery, Untried and Worthless; on the contrary, they have stood the test—they have proved their superiority. They stand alone in pre-eminent merit, and YOU KNOW IT.

WHEN ALLIGATORS ARE NEEDED.

A Good Case Made Out for the Ugly Reptiles of the South.

Since the year 1876 water has not been so scarce on the cattle range as it is at the present time, so it is reported. The indiscriminate killing of the alligators has cut off the source of supply of water, because the 'gators held a water hole they always kept; the mud pushed up the banks, and when even hundreds of cattle would come to the 'gator wallows to drink, and be crawling and Alligator and his family would soon repair the damage by digging and pushing back the mud.

Now the cattle stand around these old wallows, which are almost entirely dried up, waiting patiently for rain. As it is, they exist only by eating the grass nights and early mornings that is heavily coated with dew.

If rain does not come soon the cattle men will be forced to dig for water, and as there are a great many thousand cattle it would seem an almost impossible task to supply them. Another plan is to drive them to the rivers, but on account of the numerous miles it would be an endless task and could scarcely be accomplished in time to do any good. A great many cattle are going into the everglades in search of water.—Fort Myers Press.

Advice to Blondes. Writing in the New York Sun Shirley Dare says that what blondes of all sorts need to lay to heart is the indispensable necessity for them of outdoor life. Not hours of amusement at tennis, or walking or driving, but living out of doors, and in sunshine, when the sun shines at all. They have the capacity for large vitality, and the source of all that is vital is the sun.

They should never choose indoor employment, as clerks or teachers, but turn gardeners, walking agents, or market women in preference, like the wily, French-haired German girl I knew, once maid to a lady of rank, who married a young farmer and drove round to sell the produce.

In her fresh trim linen gown and shade hat she dressed the part perfectly, and with the light spring wagon and good horse, driving over the Bergen hills to carry her golden butter and ruddy pears, or early salads, she was as much in place, as ladylike and pleasant a creature as one could wish a woman to be.

The time is coming when susceptible women, as all blondes are, will not shut themselves up in school keeping or house-keeping, to grow wrinkled and furred before they are thirty, but take to themselves acres to grow fruit and flowers, under intelligent and profitable "high culture."

Reward of Ready Wit. "Have you read the 'Descent of Man'?" asked Clara, looking over the book-shelves. "No," said George, a little timidly. "don't care for it; but I'd like to get the ascent of woman."

It is currently reported that he got it the very next Sunday night that ever was. —[Robert J. Burdette.

Wondrous Propriety. "Temporary suicide by a man unknown while in an unsound state of mind," was the somewhat peculiar verdict returned by Coroner's jury the other day. The officer of the Crown rubbed his crown and sighed. All these juries are passing through the world as fairly sane folk, and perhaps they are on ordinary occasions. People often get mixed at "Crown's" queries.

Most Likely to be Read. "I should really like to write something that would be read after I am dead," said a literary man who had had little success with his recently published works. "Well, what's the matter with your writing your will?" replied a friend. "I'll see that it is read after you are gone."

PROPERTY SAFE IN NEW YORK.

A Famous Bank Robber To Be Liberated in a Few Months—No More Safe Crackers—Bank Burglars Go West.

"The last remnant of the greatest band of bank robbers that the country has ever produced will be at large in a few months," said Police Inspector Thomas Byrnes today during a chat over the remarkable decrease in big crime in New York city. It is a fact that New York is getting to be a highly moral city. The Manhattan Bank robbery was the last great feat. It is also many years since any professional cracksmen have dared to venture into the precincts sacred to financial interests about Wall street. The arrests made this year number nearly three hundred, but the crime committed are by a large percentage of a petty nature.

From 1873 to 1876 many banking institutions in all parts of the country were robbed by the most daring methods. During these four years the gang headed by Jim Dunlap, to whom Inspector Byrnes referred above, stole nearly $4,000,000 in cash and marketable bonds. Detective Sergeant Phil Reilly, of the Central Office, who has taken no small share in putting down crime, remembers Dunlap and his pals well. In the latter part of 1876 a smart young man was convicted of grand larceny in Illinois and sent to the penitentiary. He was handsome and well educated, and because of his ability to swindle people he was called "Hustling Bob." His right name was Robert Scott. While in prison he came in contact with an old and hardened criminal, who was known to the police of Chicago as "Boss" Tom. This man was the notorious Tom Reilly, or "Boss" Tom. He it was who headed the great gang of bank burglars. Taking a fancy to Scott, he met him in Chicago after his term expired and introduced him to Dunlap. Reilly was not a bank robber, but he always declared that he could tell just what line of crime a man was best suited for, and he advised Scott and Dunlap to become partners in the business of bank burglary. Dunlap was young and bright. He brought Scott to this city and made him acquainted with one Connors, a promising crook always on the lookout for big stakes. This trio formed the nucleus of the celebrated band of professional safe-crackers. Soon after they robbed the First City Bank in Louisville of $200,000. Because of the shrewdness of the gang the detectives were baffled. George Miles, Edson and others became members of the firm of Dunlap & Co., and they robbed right and left. The Pittsford (Mass.) bank lost $400,000 through the efforts of Dunlap and Scott, and then the great Northampton bank robbery occurred. Arrests followed, and Edson gave his associates away. Connors, who lived on Ludlow Street Jail, and has never been seen in these parts since. Billy Porter is in Paris living like a sylvan. Red Leary is dead, and the others have either fled or are in prison.

Dunlap and Scott were convicted and sent to imprisonment for twenty years each. Scott died of consumption five years ago, and now Dunlap is about to enter into the world again. He is supposed to have had several hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds before he was arrested, and he laughingly informs his keepers that he intends to lead the life of a gentleman when he comes out. Among the other bank robbers who have found New York too hot for their comfort, are Frank Buck, alias "Buckey" Taylor; Jim Burns, Billy Burke, John Curtin, William Coleman, Rufe Minor, Emanuel Marks, alias "Mick," Charles Fisher, John Price, Charles Hicks, John O'Brien, Joe Parish, Bill Vosburg, John Irving, alias "The Greek," Charley Adams, William Robinson, Frank McCoy, alias "Big Frank," Peter Luthy and Ike Marsh. Not one of these men has even attempted any "crooked" business in New York since Inspector Byrnes has been at the head of the detective force. A few of them have reformed, some are in prison, but most of them are never heard of. They have quietly disappeared.

Inspector Byrnes believes that the day of organized professional cracksmen is at an end so far as New York is concerned. Of course there is always danger of a move in that direction by the younger generation of crooks. This is attested to by such prominent citizens as the Rev. Dr. Howard B. Crosby and Elbridge T. Gerry. These gentlemen have paid considerable attention to the subject. The detective force is so conducted that a professional criminal cannot walk the streets of this city for five hours before every member of the force is on the look out for him. It is not that such people are detected and committed to prison because they have grown better. They are simply watched so closely that they know full well the moment they attempt any "business" they will be arrested. Some years ago the financial quarter of the city was so poorly protected that bank burglars and bank sneaks found it an easy matter to walk off with vast sums of money and securities. In 1876, however, not one dollar has been stolen in this quarter by professional criminals. If the robbery they have been doing in the past may be laid at the doors of bank burglars and other thieves of their kind, the detective bureau in Wall street and the system in which the quarter is patrolled night and day makes it almost impossible for anyone but the trained officials of the banks at banking institutions to do any stealing. It is the same in other sections of the city. The drygoods district is almost burglar proof.

A famous forger who formerly made millions of dollars by their skillful penmanship have either died or ceased operations. A few have gone west, as have some of the bank burglars. A very few have reformed. At any rate they do not dare attempt their former means of making wealth. In this dry, the notorious William E. Brockway is the last of the fraternity of professional forgers. Anything done in that line in these days is generally traced to either a clerk or a partner of the person whose name is forged. It is true that the records show that the number of swindlers and pickpockets is still very large, but the prominence with which they are arrested is materially lessening their number. Several are sent to Sing Sing or to the penitentiary every day. They are for the most part burglars, the smart sneaks and the pickpockets having emigrated to the West.

Never. You never see an undertaker's advertisement headed "Live man wanted to fill vacancy."

QUEEN BOYS IN MEXICO.

What an Observing Canadian. Noted of Things Sold by Indians on the Streets of That City.

This being a holiday week, Mexican children from the city of Mexico, the Zocalo, the grand square or plaza, in front of the grand Mexican Cathedral, the just crowded with Indians, who have the queerest lot of things to sell I have ever seen. Every now and then there is a new feast, and at each new feast, the Indians bring out new toys, or new sets of toys, entirely different from what they have had for sale at previous feasts. These toys are got up in all shapes and forms, and every one of them has this turning apparatus.

But as soon as the feast is over the toys disappear, and they do not bring them out again until the same feast occurs the following year, when they again have the particular toys for that particular feast for sale, and yet they do not look about worn when they bring them out but look quite new, and when you remember that these Indians live in houses generally huddled together like Chinese, you will wonder where they keep these things in the meantime. I have been unable to find anyone who knows.

At the present feast they sell toys that have a little handle which turns them around or on which they turn around, that is the toy turns around, and as it turns it makes a noise something like a northern baby's rattle box. These toys are got up in all shapes and forms, and every one of them has this turning apparatus.

Some are little boys sitting in little wagons, with a stick or handle fastened to the bottom of the wagon, which by turning in the hand causes the wagon to turn around and make the particular noise referred to above; or perhaps they will have the representation of a bull fight and this being on a little platform is turned around in a similar manner.

There is every kind of toy you could think of and a great many you could not think of, but all with one exception have this particular power of being turned and of making the queer noise as they revolve.

The scene on the plaza to-day is very funny. Such a queer noise as all these little toys revolve and such odd cries from the many Indians. To-morrow at ten o'clock they will burn Judas. This is a thing they do every year after Good Friday.

For the last two or three days in addition to the toys which I have described they have been selling large and small representations of Judas Iscariot. I don't know what the reason is, but they look like Judas did or not but they almost all look different except in one respect and that is that they are hideously ugly. Judas is made of painted wood or some similar material and all fitted with movable material and so on.

In the burning of Judas is effected by the church itself. This they will do from the great Cathedral, on top of which will be placed an enormous representation of Judas, which will be filled with boots, clothes and other things. They will set it on fire and as the different things drop out the Indians will scramble for them.

The Princess of Wales's Bath.

The Princess of England, whose complexion is not only the finest, but who has best stood the wear and tear of time, takes her morning plunge regularly, and never fairly cold, but she is particularly careful to promptly make use of the fresh brush, using gloves of moderate roughness, rapidly over the surface of the body, and finally, the rough towel in a quick, general rub, occupying both for the bath and this massage, if one may call it such, twenty minutes in all.

At night the same lady's bath is prepared tepid and of distilled water, the admirable advantage of which is properly understood. Every particle of foreign matter is removed from distilled water, so that it is absolutely pure.

It costs about twelve cents per gallon, and can be used, a quart at a time, for a quick sponge bath, with admirable effect, especially when combined with a little glycerine and rose water.

Bismarck's Wife.

Prince Bismarck's wife is said to be a typical "hausfrau," with never a thought above petty domestic details. The Crown Prince's wife is of the same nature.

In their eyes it is little short of infamous for the Empress to read philosophy, advocate the higher education of women, and take an intelligent interest in the affairs of the Empire and of the world. Her breadth of intellect and force of character have never prevented the Empress from being a model wife and a model mother.

Tommy's Pretty Clever.

Teacher—"Tommy, how far is the sun from the earth?"

Tommy (promptly)—"Ninety-four miles."

Teacher (impressively)—"Ninety-four millions of miles, Tommy."

Tommy—"Oh, yes, ninety-four millions—I knew it was ninety-four something."

Just His Luck.

"Do you believe there is any such thing as luck?" asked a young man of an old bachelor.

"I do. I've had proof of it."

"In what way?"

"I was refused by five girls when I was a young man."—Merchant Traveler.

For the Church People.

One of the most hindrances to church growth is the habits that some of the members have of always becoming troubled and pining a high rate of interest.—Hartford Religious Herald.

The National Games.

"Bobby," said his father, with an ominous look in his eye, "why weren't you at school this afternoon?"

Bobby, hung his head. "Cause I went to see the ball game," he said.

"Is that so? Who won?"

"Smith." "Who is that philanthropist so carefully sprinkling ashes on the sides of the public sidewalk?" Brown.

"He is not a philanthropist. He is the president of an accident insurance association."
